DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-3, 5-7, and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tsuneki, US Patent 4,313,239. See figures 1 and 2. A mounting device, capable of being used as a door piston to door jamb interface apparatus, has an a flat, elongated plate 2 having at least one threaded hole to receive 9 formed therein, and a bracket including a base 5 and transverse support member 10 affixed to the base, the base including a hole configured in the same pattern as the threaded hole of the plate whereupon, when the hole in the base of the bracket and threaded hole in the plate are aligned, a threaded bolt 9 inserted through the hole can securing the base to the plate, wherein the support member defines a pin receiving hole (see figure 1, far leaf vertically extending member) that is spaced from the base and which is configured to receive a pin therethrough capable of pivotally securing a connecting rod or a housing of a door piston to the support member, wherein threaded end of the threaded bolt does not extend outside of the threaded holes when the bracket is secured to the plate, and wherein the threaded hole does not used to attach the bracket to the plate can be used to attach the plate to a door jamb.

Tsuneki provides the claimed invention except explicit teaching of the plate having a plurality of threaded holes arranged in at least a first subset of threaded holes and a second subset of threaded holes, and the base having a plurality of arranged in at least a first subset of threaded holes and a second subset of threaded holes with each subset of threaded holes having the same hole pattern a threaded bolt inserted through each of the set of holes with either the first or second subset of threaded holes thereby securing the base to the plate threadedly mate with either the first or second subset of threaded holes, as claimed. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the device in such a way, since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Bemis Co., 193 USPQ 8. One reason for such a modification may be for providing addition reinforcement of the attachment of bracket to the plate, particularly for a much larger or wider mounting structure design.

3. Claim 4 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims of record have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
